[redacted] Met with James Kendall, Staff Director of the Senate Preparedness Investigating Subcommittee, concerning the request we had received from Colonel Martell, of the staff.

Kendall said he appreciated my discussing this matter with him, that we should let the matter ride for the time being and if the Subcommittee had a real need to see the film perhaps it would be best if they attend a viewing at the Agency. I agreed this might be a good solution to the problem. However, we will do nothing unless Kendall makes a further request.

[redacted] Returned to Representative Albert M. Cule, copies of the letter which he had received from a Russian student and of his reply to the student. I told Cule that our people were quite interested in this but felt the Soviet student's correspondence was undoubtedly being controlled by Soviet censors. I added that we would be in touch with him shortly with suggestions for inclusions in his letters to the student.

[redacted] Talked with William Lowell and Ralph Hutto, of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee staff, concerning the final printing of the translations of Mr. Helms' testimony on Communist Forgeries. They expect the printed copies to be available within ten days to two weeks. I also talked with Richard Nathan, in Senator Kenneth E. Keating's office, about the hearings. Nathan has made an arrangement with Lowell for the Senator to send copies of the translations to the foreign language publications in the New York area. (We are to supply a suggested list of publications to the Subcommittee.) Nathan is interested in knowing how many New York publications are on this list. He said he thought the Senator would want to get the maximum possible coverage on publications of this sort within the state of New York. [redacted] is sending a complete list to us.) The list will then be forwarded to Mr. Lowell.

[redacted] Martin said he had seen [redacted] on several occasions including two visits in Washington and one in Paris. I told Martin that I would pass this on to the people who had requested it and that they might like to discuss this further with him. In connection with the [redacted] comment on these documents, Martin said his reaction was the same as that of our people. Martin added that Senator Dodd expected to be out of town for approximately three weeks and, therefore, would not be available for lunch with Mr. McCone during that time. (I have passed on to Mr. Tweedy the information regarding [redacted])

[redacted] In response to a request from the CIA Library which had received numerous calls on the matter, contacted Maurine E. Dantsic, Senate Armed Services Committee staff, concerning the question of whether the Committee publishes a printed report of confirmation hearings. Miss Dantsic advised that although such a report is possible in theory, to her knowledge the Committee has never published one. The Library was so advised.
